William Bell Scott (who painted that picture of King Egfrith asking Saint Cuthbert to become Bishop) was a Scottish artist who lived for a few years in the North East.

He created this painting called the Water-carrier, now in a museum in Canada.

It shows a well that is in fact on Tyneside.

Can you guess where it is? (Not Jarrow)

Can you make out the word carved into the stone arch over the well? (it's very hard to read)
